

A little bit about myself

Thanks for reading my blog! You may know me as Amu-chan or Amulet.

What most distinguishes me is that I'm the kind of person that does not get carried away by what other people say or do. My personality is very similar to those persons that are very creative, with the difference that I'm extroverted. Some people on the Internet have compared me with Suzumiya Haruhi XD

I see life with great excitement and surprise, I try to find a meaning in everything and to make every day important.

I get a little annoyed when people misinterpret my intentions because, truthfully, I'm not trying to get on anyone's good side :c. Sometimes I can't be bothered with common sense, if I say that I love you all and that I want to find the secret of life, that's just it, there's nothing more to it.

I hate hiding my intentions, I like to always make my intentions clear.

Web: <https://curl.pink/>

I'm very open-minded about spiritual beliefs and I try to learn something from every religion. I can get very surprised of people indifference and I believe things can be different, and suddenly, I'll get really inspired and I'd wish people were as interested as I am.

I'm a very curious person and some people have even told me I am the most intelligent person they have known; I actually know there are plenty of people smarter than me ^-^, the only thing I do is avoid staying in a single place, I'm always looking to renew my knowledge.

Many people think I'm very creative, and maybe they're not completely wrong

Have I ever told you that I am ambidextrous?

Linux is one of my biggest interests so I created a space for it, you can read about it in:
<http://gentoo.curl.pink/>

Another of my passions, a somewhat less intense passion, it's English:

I love this language, I think Shakespeare was an amazing writer that immortalized humans in an incredible way, and I also love the aesthetic of his writing, I'm getting very interested in reading English, in addition, I want to learn French, Esperanto and then Portuguese, the so called universal languages have picked my interest.

Web: <https://curl.pink/>

One of my dreams is that my page becomes some sort of global message, I'm a bit foolish from time to time when it comes to my dreams but I am happy the way I am and being foolish have gotten me far :D

What's on my mind:

I get very passionate when I'm interested in something. Before I started taking my medicines, I could achieve a kind of advanced concentration known as hyperfocus, I'd get so deep in thought that it'd become a psychedelic experience, like being at the bottom of a pool.

My world was composed of images and intense sounds, and for this reason, I was always stressed and exhausted.

My defect

I'm not a confrontational person, I prefer to fix a problem and avoid conflicts, but I know this may get on your nerves at times, guys :c

"Hey, hey, let's not fight. I'm sure we can come to an understanding if we just talk." —Nanami Momozono

My moods

My inner concept Real Self-esteem How I'm feeling

Yandere Princess

In the first place, I expect great things from myself and I believe I can achieve anything I set my mind on, but deep down I do not feel well with myself, I feel like there's something I'm missing, like something is really bothering me; my anguish turns me against myself and I tend to be very hard on myself :c.

The good thing about it is that I get passionate, the bad thing is that I can become obsessive. That's why I represented myself angry in the third drawing, in the back, kind of transparent.

Happy go Lucky

It is a very different side of me: I'm kind of dorky and funny.

Silly stuff adfghs. For me, that's the real me. Am I 14 years old? Thanks. I guess... I look younger 😊 I'm full of love 😊, someday I'm gonna change the world :3 I'm scared that someday this side of me will disappeared because of my responsibilities.